

Observation of a previous gambler on our MVP

- Instructed to click around and interact like you would with any gambling site
 - Immediately tried to click on the bet itself, trying to maximize or see if it would go into a different window maybe?
 - Then clicked for the up and downvote buttons
 - Then went to the sides of the bar that would have made a bet
 - Keep in mind none of these do anything
 - Tried to scroll around and find more things for a bit
 - Annoyed at this point that nothing works but not our fault
 - Then went to create bet
 - After clicked pass time and was confused what that was
- Never went for the report button which was telling, but knowing this guy that kinda makes sense
- When I asked him to do all the basic things you want he said “okay sure”
 - Said it as to make sure people can figure out how to do it
 - Responded with demeaning comments about the average person’s intelligence and what they should do if they WEREN’T able to figure this stuff out

Questions

Layout was intuitive

Lots of empty space which was useless

Def felt like there should be something on the right and below (which will be filled with more bets, and the right will have leaderboard probably so should be fine)

Said it felt significantly less busy than all other websites he has used before

Colors scheme seemed good, appreciated the grinnell banner at the top

Said maybe green and blue and orange were kinda ugly on the bright red bet
